

Business Writing Essentials

A half-day workshop for teams that need their emails, reports and proposals to be read, decided on and acted upon.

Why workplace writing fails

1

The point arrives too late

The decision or request sits in paragraph four, so busy readers skim past it and reply with a question instead of an answer.

2

The reader has to work too hard

Long sentences, internal jargon and walls of text push the effort onto the reader, who gives up or misreads.

3

The next step is unclear

No owner, no date and no explicit ask, so the document is read, agreed with and then nothing happens.

One structure fixes all three, and it takes a morning to learn.

What the half-day covers

Format: 3.5 hours online or on-site, 6 to 16 participants, every exercise on documents the team brings with them.

Three ways to work with us

Half-day workshop From CAD 1,200 Duration 3.5 hours Group size 6 to 16 people Best for Teams that need one shared writing standard fast	Full-day workshop From CAD 2,100 Duration 7 hours Group size 6 to 16 people Best for Teams writing long reports and proposals	One-to-one coaching From CAD 800 Duration 4 x 60 minutes Group size 1 person Best for Managers and specialists preparing high-stakes documents

All formats include a pre-session survey, a participant workbook and a four-week follow-up review.

What changes after the workshop

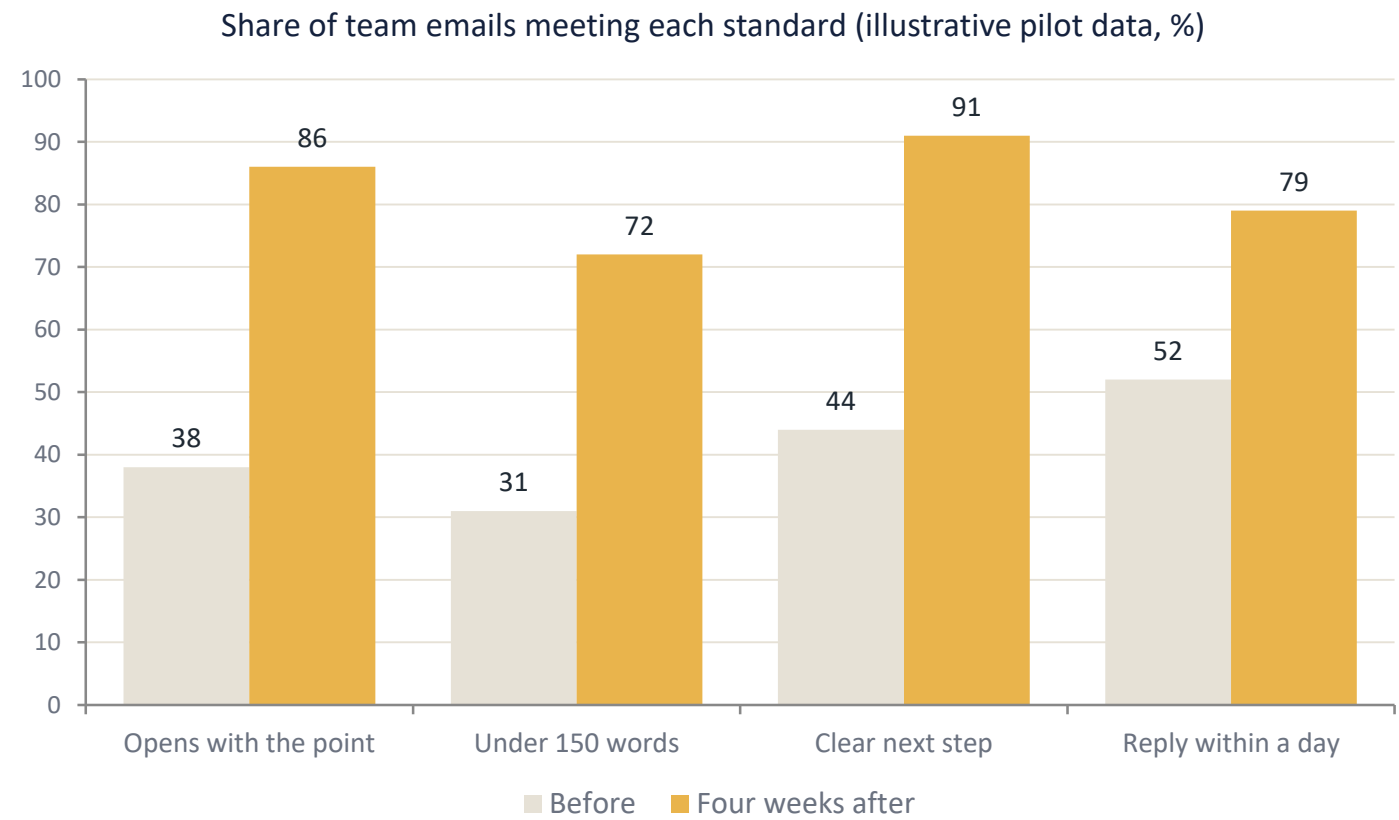

Chart shows sample data to illustrate how results are reported after a pilot cohort.

Participants leave with

- A three-part structure that works for any email, report or proposal
- A one-page editing checklist for the team's shared drive
- One real document rewritten, reviewed and ready to send
- A follow-up review of three more documents, four weeks later

About the facilitator

Dr. Elena Marsh

Founder, Northlight Learning Studio | Lecturer in Business Communication

Elena teaches business communication at university level and founded Northlight Learning Studio to bring the same clarity to working professionals. Her workshops are practical by design: participants rewrite their own documents in the room and leave with something they can send the same afternoon.
